THE FACULTY

THE MEETING HOUSE

Campus Song

When the shades of evening gather Guilford students hie To the soft green swarded campus, For a time our books laid by; And the parting rifts of sunlight, As they linger soft and long, Shed a hollow'd gleam of gladness. On our merriment and song.

Now the songs of dear old Guilford Peal across the downy green, From Archdale to Memorial Span the distance far between; And the walls of dear old Founders The reverberations fling, From Cox Hall to New Garden, As our voices gayly ring.

Then across to fair Arcadia
The chimings wing their flight,
Till beyond the far-flung hill-tops
They kiss heaven's dome of light
Then as if they rued their boldness,
Back they come in echoes gay;
And thus end the winged praises
Of the Crimson and the Gray.

Have you ever known a person whom everybody loved? Well, just such a person is "Aunt Debbie." She always has a smile for you and has one of the best dispositions that any person ever possessed. French is her major work and she is well rewarded with A's, Her great popularity was manifested in her almost unanimous election as editor-in-chief of The Guilfordian and the ease with which she has edited the paper shows that much awaits her in the literary world. The high order of scholarship and unexcelled literary ability which she possesses make her the most competent and highly respected girl in the class. As "Annt Debbie" bids her Alma Mater fare-well she leaves many worshippers who have lost their heroine. There is no other girl in the class so generally loved and none who have so many friends. Her gentleness and modesty will give her an enviable position in the world.

"Where'er she turns the Graces homage pay."

Age 20; Height, 5 ft. 5 in.; Weight 125

There must be something in a name despite Shakespere's testimony to the contrary, for this maiden is all grace. Gracette is one of those rare personalities whose warm winning manner makes her welcomed in all circles. The art for which she is known (though not the only one of which she is master), is that of bringing from the heart of the piano, melodies which charm the hearts of all. Her musical talent is truly excellent, not only in point of expression but throughout the college and community she is known as a master accompanist. Not the least in a category of her charms is her social grace. Her simple gracionsness puts one at ease in her presence and her merry laugh is good to hear needless to say her friends are legion.

Marie is retiring and unobtrusive almost to a fault and one has to know her intimately in order to see and understand those admirable and superb qualities of character of which she possesses a great number. Thoughtful and unselfish, the comfort of others is always her first care. She has perhaps a deeper appreciation of the fine in literature and art than any other member of our class and this quality has been more than evident in the high order of her society work. Refinement and culture are inherent in Marie and the desire to attain life's best and highest is her guiding star. To know Marie is to love her.

In the fall of 1915 the cold winds of Canada swept Gertrude southward. She landed at Guilford to join our class. To build a perfect character is her aim. She stands as an independent thinker and has a wonderful power of continuation when she begins to discourse. Gertrude delves into psychology and is a perfect crank about anything pertaining to biology. Her talent in art and music is hidden to many. And she appears to be very much of a dreamer. Who knows but that when these dreams materialize there will be a successful life of service. Enthusiasm and perseverance are her hand maids when once her mind is made to undertake or support anything.

Elbert came to us from the Palmetto State but his two and a half years of school life in North Carolina bave converted him into a thorough going "Tar Heel." His record in general scholarship is one to which he may point with pride and the mysteries of psychology and logic hold no terrors for him. In him we find the rare combination of musician and athlete. It is hard to say which he had rather be doing playing Beethover or standing like a stone in the center of the football line. In society work, in class work, on the athletic field he has always been found with his shoulder to the wheel. Of a kindly and sociable disposition he is a well rounded character.

Strong willed and independent "Gris" goes serenely on his way little seeking the plaudits of his fellow beings. Squarely honest and straight forward he never acts merely to gain popular favor. Nevertheless he has succeeded in winning numerous friends during his four year's sojourn at Guilford. Dame Fortune has smiled indulgently on "Gris" and as a favored child of hers he enjoys a goodly share of her blessings. She has granted unto him an en-gaging presence and a certain charm of manner which we may call gallantry. But the smiles of Dame Fortune have not given "Gris' an exaggerated notion of his own importance. Indeed it might be said that he is somewhat reticent when it comes to an expression of his ideas. No man belonging to the Class of can lay claim to more genuine mental ability than can "Gris." This is shown as well by the usual wit and humor of his conversation as by the ease with which he captures good grades. Capable and determined whatever "Gris" wills to do, he can do.

Dignity and composure sit enthroned on Ira's brow. Thoroughly self-confident he has succeeded in winning the confidence of those with whom he comes in contact. An excel-lent intellect, an especially good student in history and economics, broad-minded and possessing sound judgment may be safely attributed to Ira. Standing for the best things in life he impresses one with his ambition and devotion to worthy ideals. Repeatedly has he demonstrated his ability of oratory, debating and general scholarship, so that he holds the high esteem of his fellow students. Possessing business and executive ability of a high order one may hazard the guess that his earnest and conscientions labor will tell in his life work.

"Jack" enjoys the unique distinction of being the youngest member of the class and the oldest student at Guilford. Six of his eighteen years have been spent here. Two in prep and four in college. His age speaks well for him as a student, and as for his future we can easily predict. Chemistry is his fort, although he passes everything else. He does not worry when he gets C's nor does he boast when he gets A's. He is an all round class-man and before him lies a great future.

For the past four years the athletic history of Guilford College has been inseparably bound up with the name of Benbow Jones. In no branch of this department of college life has be ever been found wanting. But you have not heard the whole of Benbow's story, versatile beyond the ordinary run of men, his sound judgment and executive ability are often in demand. A clear, logical thinker, and his conclusions are never far from correct. Possessing an engaging personality "Bow" makes friends easily and these he holds by his genial comradship.

Beatrice is attractive to heart and eye. Seeking and enjoying congenial companiouship, affable, lovable and anxious to please, she wins and holds many friends. She is also a sincere and conscientions worker, and her ideas and ideals are the highest possible. She is a friend worth having and always willing and happy to aid one who is fortunate enough to possess her friendship. Her social graces are many and pleasing and the charm of her personality is felt by all with whom she comes in contact. In all the various departments of college life with which she has been connected she has done her work faithfully and well.

Lithe of form, militant of spirit, strong of brain is Addie, our athlete-our all round Senior. During her college career she has championed the cause of girls' athletics and has done more to popularize the various sports among girls than any other member of our class. But don't get the mistaken idea into your head that athletics is her only strong point. Her scholarship has ever been of a uniformly high standard. In fact every phase of college life has felt the influence and power of this little maiden-the live wire of the Class of '18. She says that she is a suffragette and she may come to the height of her ambition in a Senate hall or after all in a bungalow-Who knows?

"Bill" is our baby, but though she is small everyone falls under the charm of her winning personality. She has entered heartily into all college activities and has won her just share of honors. Fortunate are those who can claim the friendship of this little brown-eyed maiden for her heart ever beats with warmth for those whom she calls her friends. Her ability as a writer and a musician is well known and we would predict a great future for her, but apparently her many charms have already proved irresistable, and doubtless some day, "her looks a cottage would adorn."

Ellen comes in a hurry and is generally late but being late doesn't count with "Teeter." You always know that when she says a thing she will do it. She is a splendid supporter of all college activities and is "true as gold." Rather frank in expressing her thoughts and always stands up for the thing that she thinks is right. Teeter is the most domestic girl of the class and her equal is rarely found in this line. Y. W. C. A. work to her is the most pleasant college activity and she has meant more to the association than can be estimated. She is very optimistic, good natured, will do anything for her friends and a fortunate bunch are they.

Joe is one of the favorites of the Class of T8, and is noted for his ready wit, jolly good humor and athletic feats. With zeal and "pep" he has entered into every form of athletics, and has left a record seldom surpassed. He is always courteous, frank and is a true sincere friend. He thinks that this world is a pretty nice place after all, and never is his face darkened by a frown of ill-humor, or a cloud of pessimism. His record in mathematics speaks for itself, and we predict that some day he will be an important factor in solving the world's great problems.

Sam is a rather quiet, unassuming person, whose real worth is not known to many except his closest friends. He has devoted much of his time to English and Chemistry but his major work is History and Economics. For the past four years the Websterian Literary Society has had no member more loyal than he. He is a sincere friend and an industrious student. We are expecting great things of Sam and no doubt he will wake up some fine morning to find himself one of the competent ones of his time in whatever pursuit he may choose to follow.

The fact that only five hours work stood between "A. J." and his diploma at the close of last year shows that he is an industrious student. You can always find him in the chemistry laboratory breaking test tubes or in the biology laboratory dissecting a cat. He is preparing to be a doctor some day and with his energy and determination we can easily predict a great future for him in his chosen field. He has been a faithful and loyal supporter of both Y. M. C. A. and Literary Society. But "A. J." decided to leave us at the end of his Junior year to continue his favorite studies at the State University and at the same time graduate with his old class.

Ruth joined us in Sophomore year. She is a quiet, unassuming girl but a steady, thorough worker in anything she undertakes, especially in her class work. In Senior year she has fulfilled exceedingly well the duties of teaching in the graded school in addition to her college course. Whatever Ruth undertakes, she will cee it through creditably. Being a day student her part in college activities has not been so large as that of some but her strong work in society has proved her literary ability. The record book will show many A's which may be termed as stars in her scholastic crown.

Philomathean Society (2, 3, 4); Science Club (2, 3, 4); Sophomore Scholarship; Junior Honors; Bryn Mawr Scholarship.

Leah came to us heralded by worthy achievement embodied in a Guilford High School Scholarship. Her subsequent record has amply justified the promise of her high school days, for in the Sophomore year the scholarship just naturally fell into her hands; since which time the honors which the days bring have been hers. Her modesty and demurepess have not been obstacles in attaining her desire which being interpreted is "A's." Though her course has largely been a study of the grand old masters, themes of a more modern character have held no terrors for her. Leah is a quiet thinker, a conscientious student, a successful worker. Her characteristics are not such as to make her widely known but that chosen circle of friends knows how to value her loyalty and devotion.

"Mitch" was one of our day students until his Senior year. He, too, no doubt, is able to give us many interesting stories of ancient Guilford. His ability as a chemist is shown by the fact that he was for two years assistant in the Chemistry Department. He has also shown us that he has great possibilities as an actor and speaker. (We do not mention his record as a mathematician). "Mitch" was taken from us a few weeks before the close of Senior year and inducted into the chemical service of the United States Army. We are sure that he will prove a valuable asset to this department.

"Tot" is one of those people who believes that "Mirth is Medicine" and that laughter lengthens life." Her wholesome laughter bids all care flee and many drooping spirits have been cheered through its power. But she doesn't laugh all the time. She can work and does work as the "Big Book" signifies. Her ability along literary lines is unsurpassed by any of those who follow the Black and Gold. And nowhere will she be missed quite so greatly as in the "Phi" society in which she has proved a strong leader. Though clothed always in that reserve that bars from her life many would be friends yet those who have won a place in her circle of friends have found only unflinching loyalty and true sincerity.

"Ches," a loyal and strong member of our class, walks about the campus with an earnest at determined air to do what is right and to do it well. He is so quiet and reserved that only those who know him best can appreciate his admirable merits. An excellent student, a man of business and executive ability, a man especially interested in religious activities, sincere and just in his ambition, we find Chester ever awake and up while 'tis day, and yet he enjoys joking and fun just like the rest of us. "Ches" is another member of our class who enjoys the distinction of completing his college course in three years.

Senior Class History

And to Dr. Hobbs looked out over the green hills of Guilford on September 8, 1914, and heaving a great sigh said, "Behold, how they are increased that trouble me!"

HIS remark was indeed apropos. For had not forty-four young hopefuls cast in their lot at this honored seat of learning on the above date. And truth compels us to admit that this bunch was perhaps more than ordinarily forlorn and friendless in appearance, and a lost or strayed sign might well have been appended to any one of us.

With feelings of mingled wonder and awe did we become initiated into the mysteries of our first "opening reception" and receive formal introduction to those higher up. And that first class meeting! How far away and hazy that evening seems in retrospect. But by some process which James could doubtless have explained satisfactorily we can even at this range reproduce slightly that thrill which crept down our spines when we found that we in class meeting assembled were actually voting for class officers. An older chronicle assures us that this ancient election was a wise one, and be it far from your present scribe to dispute such an authority. Suffice it to say that we duly became an organized class and took upon ourselves the role of Guilford College citizens. Doubtless we received the prescribed amount of advice and admonition from the members of the class just above, and mayhaps a few of our number even suffered physical violence (?) during some of the snowstorms of that year. Rumor has it that some '18-ers actually camped out on certain nights during that first year. Be that as it may, it must be said that we remained thoroughly good-natured all the while and were always willing to be shown.

In the spring term of this first year we met the Sophomores in forensic combat and made them fight to the last ditch for the two-to-one decision rendered in their favor.

Even in our earliest days we possessed orators of note and Roger Kiser succeeded in bearing off the Clay oratorical medal—an unusual honor for a first vear man.

Our Freshman athletic record while in no way brilliant is one upon which we look backward with satisfaction. We put down our erstwhile moral advisors in interclass basketball, and made the Juniors look well to their laurels for the class championship.

And now it becomes my duty to chronicle the saddest event connected with our initial year at Guilford. Of the valiant host who bravely enlisted in the ranks of College Algebra, few alas! survived to tell the tale.

Lest our readers should dwell too long on this sad picture, we shall hasten to sing the story of our second year at Guilford. Back again we came twenty-eight strong. This was to be sure a slight decrease in numbers, but our shortened roll call was amply made up for by our superabundant confidence and cocksureness. Firmly convinced that we held in our possession the one and only remedy for all the errors of humanity, and that Guilford was our oyster to be opened at pleasure, we proceeded to make ourselves seen and heard within these college walls. Perhaps our chief claim to glory for this year lies in our athletic record. We furnished men for each of the varsity athletic teams, and we took tenderly unto ourselves the interclass baseball championship for the year. In attest of this fact, witness the glowing 7δ which shines out like a beacon from the Pharos at the back of Founders—a fitting memorial to the prowess of our acrobats as well as to our athletes!

But—we must on with our story. September, 1916, found even a smaller number than the preceding year back at our posts of duty. This group although fully justifying the epitaph "Jolly Juniors" were nevertheless taking on a new seriousness and thoughtfulness as "new occasions taught new duties." We fast began to realize that wiser heads than ours had grown gray in pondering the difference between what is and what should be, and relinquishing our Sophomoric plans of world reformation, we set ourselves earnestly to the tasks which three years of college life enjoin. If it be true that "we live in deeds," then it follows that we of '18 lived rather intensively in the good year 1917. For upon us as Juniors descended that year the interclass basketball championship. Having had two representatives on the team, we feel also that '18-ers may claim a share in the honor which belongs to Guilford as State champion in the field of collegiate baseball.

A history of this Junior year would be sadly incomplete should we omit to mention that with rare diplomacy and tact we secured the gracious consent and presence of Miss Osborne on a Junior picnic—an event hitherto unheard of. A custom was thus established for which all Juniors who come after us should be eternally grateful.

It also became our pleasure to entertain the Class of '17 during the spring of this year, and their visit to us will always be a red letter day in the memory of '18.

Can it really be possible that I have arrived at the final year of my chronicle? It seems only yesterday since a certain one of our number went into the library, and timidly removed a newspaper from its hanger, experiencing untold anguish and embarrassment when it was discovered that this had not been at all necessary!

On September 6, 1917, sixteen of '18 made known their intention to "carry on" and see the thing through to a finish. One of our number had decided to secure this last year of training at our State University; another having heard Uncle Sam's ringing call to the colors had responded instantly. Several others, feeling perhaps that three years of college life are almost as good as four, resolved to direct their activities along other lines.

It is yet early to chronicle the story of our Senior year. But even now the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" gives us a throaty, choky feeling and everywhere in the various organizations as successors take our places we are reminded that Guilford campus will soon know us no more.

Our Senior boys are still making Guilford's athletic history, and their places on the various teams will with difficulty be filled next year.

Be it said to our everlasting credit that although Psychology launched a desperate offensive against us we have safely survived its onslaughts with no casualties and having braved the assaults of "determinism," we of '18 bid fair to become metaphysicians of note.

March 6, 1918! That is a high water mark in our Senior history. For on that date the Class of '19 threw open the doors of New Garden and with a gracious hospitality before unequaled, even in Guilford's history, made us their guests—a pleasant picture in a Senior's gallery of memories.

My task is done. You have heard the story of '18. Disappointing? Well, perhaps—in some respects. But we hope nevertheless that we have given Guilford something. We know that she has given us much. It is with a feeling of sadness that we lay down our pen. Our career at Guilford, be it what it may, is finished and each one of us can say with sincerity:

"I wish myself could talk to myself As I left him four years ago; I could tell him a lot That would help him a lot In the things he ought to know."

FOUNDERS HALL

Senior Class Prophesy

"The American mail, miss," and with a low bow Chang placed in my eager hands a miscellaneous collection of month-old papers magazines and bulletins, among which my quick eye caught sight of a satisfactory number of interesting, personal-looking letters.

The papers were hastily but carefully assorted and put to my left, for they would receive due attention later. But letters came first, and I held them reverently in my two hands—seventeen of them, with one Lone Oak Farm on top. While I read the belated news from home, I held the others close in my arms; but when I had finished, I let them fall in luxuriant confusion into my lap, as I dreamily approved of the weight of this one, or the hulkiness of that. And this other one-what about it? The biggest, heaviest of the lot, postmarked Washington, D. C. Curiously I broke the seal, and forthwith a great light penetrated my bedouded intellect, and a sigh of genuine thankfulness escaped my lips, for missive joined to missive eame pouring out—The Round Robin Letter of the Class of '18, Vol. IX.

Oh, joy! Letters from everybody in my class at old G. C. after ten years! "Oh, memories that bless

It would probably take me two hours to get the most out of this one letter, so I got my nicest footstool and a comfortable rocker-American luxuries-and began at the beginnning.

New York, September 8, 1927.

Dear Eighteen-ers:

I don't know why I was selected to start the ninth Round Robin, but I'm glad enough to do it. I think this annual letter is the most downright satisfactory thing our class has ever done. You remember at commencement we couldn't point to many distinct achievements, could we?

Well, as I can't speak for anyhody else, and besides, everybody will add his own story, I'll tell you about myself. I'm putting most of my time in the woman's league here, and my particular service is editing one of the monthly publications. You know I experimented in journalism a little (Of all modesty—I have her two latest books!) and I find my position rather agreeable, as it leaves me some time for myself.

Now I could ramble on all day-writing being a habit of mine, but I will say the rest in a few words. September always brings back memories of going to Guilford, of the first excitement of registration, when year after year we met and, carefree, happy-go-lucky college boys and girls, shouted to each other across the campus, "Hail Soph" and "Junior" and "Senior" as the black and gold standard advanced.

I realize now that my life was largely shaped in those four years, and that whatever I have done or will do is a result of the quiet stimulation of the Guilford atmosphere, and the loyal friends and pleasant companionship I enjoyed there, and my warm interest follows in an especial way all who were in my class—the Class of '18.

Please write something, everybody, if only a line, and keep the letter going.

Greetings to all of you from one of you.

Yes. Deborah, with her old kindliness and affection and modesty. The casual reader wouldn't guess she had taken all kinds of literary honors, and was spoken of as a "Native of the United States.

And she sent her communication to "Little" Grissom.

Philadelphia, Pa., September 25, 1927.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

When Deborah's letter came, I was away from my office, or the cause shouldn't have been delayed two weeks by me.

I guess you all know I adopted Pennsylvania for my State eight years ago when I went into the law, and since then I've worked hard, even if most of you do think I owe my present job to my politics! (As a matter of fact, he'd never have gotten it in North Carolina).

When I was in Greenshoro last summer, I drove out to Guilford and I had one thrill when I saw a certain substantial evidence of the interest of the Class of '18 in her welfare of the college. I want everyone of you to go back some time. It's great!

I am grateful to Deborah for remembering my address, and shall pass this one to my nearest neighbor.

Luck to the Black and Gold.

LAWRENCE

I say-the old joke about that election. Next?

Bryn Mawr, Pa., October 9, 1927.

DEAR FOLKS:

Even if I don't write many letters, the Class of '18 will call forth my best effort. My, our class is scattered over every portion of the windswept earth, isn't it? It scarcely seems possible that we used to meet every day for "Psych" and Logic—and how did one room contain so much potential greatness!

Since my return from France I have enjoyed teaching French very much and I give my whole time to my graduate students. But, lest 1 bring back past agonies, I'll drop

I'm planning a visit to Guilford next summer. I'm very anxious to see the improvements out at the college, and if any of you happen by, look me up.

Lots of luck,

P. S.-I'm sending my letter to Ruth, for she's recently moved to Greensboro and I think her address isn't generally known.

Greensboro, N. C., October 28, 1927.

DEAR SENIORS:

That's the way I remember you all best, and that name brings back "old times" best. I know I haven't kept up with my classmates as I should and I've kept this letter too But you know I was married in the summer of '19-and that ought to be excuse enough.

I haven't by any means lost interest in Guilford, for we've been out there several times recently.

But I must stop. I'm going to send my contribution with the rest to Sam Smith at the State College of Alabama.

With all good wishes.

RUTH S. -

"Happily married" written between every line. Oh, well; I expected it.

Albany, Ala, November 14, 1927.

DEAR MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF '18:

I think I can add only a brief account of myself tonight, for we are doing heavy work here now. You know, of course, that this is my second year at the State College in the agricultural department, and I'm to have a special assistant with my work next year.

I'm sending my very best wishes to the Class of '18 and the promise that I'll try to give a better account of myself next year.

One worker in the class, at least,

Winston-Salem, N. C., December 1, 1927.

Dear Classmates:

When Sam sent me the Round Robin, I deliberately cut two English classes, and devoured it. It was very, very interesting.

Um teaching at Salem yet, and I like the work. I majored in English, you know. But I have an idea that this is my last year here. And since the '18 class is like my intimate family. I don't mind saying the reason is a real nice man. You'll all hear more later, and to cool my blushing cheek, I'll stop writing.

"Father, forgive them, for they know what they do"-but I knew they'd do it. Well, what's this?

NIGHT LETTER THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY

Received at Baltimore, Md., December 16, 1927.

DEAR TOT:

I enjoyed the letters very much and intended to enclose my "mite," but just as I was finishing it, I was called away on some mighty urgent and important business, so I had to leave your address and orders for the Round Robin to be forwarded to you.

Please enclose this note as an excuse for my "flunking"—but really I can't add anything of interest. I haven't been to Guilford in five years, and since you were here, I haven't seen a G. C. student. I'm anxions to go back, maybe next summer, and see the new gym, and the '18 fountain.

Hurriedly.

"Bo" Jones

Oh yes, just like him. Business personified, but quite a social personage, yet, I'll bet, And now for Tot's thousand-word composition. What, a short one!

Baltimore, Md., January 6, 1928.

DEAR '18 FOLKS:

I can't write much, because my time is very full. The letters reached me here, because I'm on a concert tour, as Benbow remembered. Yes, and my manager is a perfect tyrant—little as you'd think it of the musical Mr. Fort. Since he's going to add a postscript, I guess I can't call him anything else.

And now for my only bit of news-and to put it plainly-I'm going to be married in October next (Yes, she always said she wouldn't), and you'll know the rest when the invitations come out.

Wish me well, ve friends of my youth!

Тот

Well, and here's the postscript.

P. S .- Hail Seniors.

Totten handed me the letter and I'm every bit as busy as she, and worried besides. She said she broke the news gently. Well, I'm out of a job. I knew after her success in New York, she'd weary of the victor's spoils. And now, unless I can get another "star" to pilot around, it's me for old S. C. and idleness, while my fingers lose their cunning, and my managing ability rusts.

But I'm game. Congratulations to the man.

ELBERT

Oh-h! I thought once-and who next?-a note!

West Point, January 20, 1928.

DEAR PEOPLE:

I've just finished the letters, but I can't write a long account of myself, because the Captain is coming over to take me out to dinner with the other officers and their wives. And besides, we're just living the uneventful life of the army in time of peace.

BEATRICE L. -

They were stationed there for a brilliant winter in military circles, I suppose. Trust Beatrice to enjoy a life like that. And she sent hers to A. J. Smith.

Asheville, N. C., February 1, 1928.

TO THE CLASS OF '18

It was mighty nice of Beatrice to send me the letters. I'm working all the time. You probably know that a few of us who graduated together have built a rather modern hospital "In the Land of the Sky," and I'm in charge. Won't some of you come up for a rest-cure?

I've lost most of the Guilford people, but I'm sending this to Ellen Raiford, who's returned from India. I hope her address is Ivor.

So Ellen's home on a leave. I wonder who's planning the menus for India right now!

Ivor, Va., February 16, 1928.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

I was so glad to get the letters, for strange to say, I almost lost trace of you while I was in Calcutta. But now I'm home for good, and I'm anxious to go to Guilford. I shall probably go to Yearly Meeting. Will any of the members of my class be there? I'd like to hold a service with some of you around the campus "ornament" before "Mem."

This seems to be taking place of wedding announcements, so I'll give you fair warning that I didn't leave India without provisions for the inture.

Here's to the class!

"TEETER"

Oh, my heart! How much that last paragraph contains. And here's Chester's letterthe only minister in the class.

Jeffersonville, Ind., March 1, 1928

DEAR MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF '18:

Eve had a quiet hour of real enjoyment with the letters Ellen sent. I think they contain more surprising news than I have had about you since we separated

I'm a real minister now, and since my pastorate is small, I'll probably be able to come to North Carolina and perform some ceremonies. How about it, ye ladies concerned? I'm going to Gnilford too-maybe I'll get there for Yearly Meeting.

Best wishes!

CHESTER

P. S.-Pm sending my letter to David J. at Raleigh.

Well, Chester has save I the respectability of the class. And I wonder what David is doing.

Raleigh, N. C., March 20, 1928.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

I'm mighty glad somebody remembered the insignificant "little David" and I got a chance at the interesting letters.

As for me, I'm working as a chemist in the State Department of Health. But I hope to get a better job soon. "Mitch" has promised to use his influence to get me a berth at

I don't know anything new about Guilford, although Hinshaw passes through here occasionally, and the Reddicks live in Raleigh; but always when I see them, the querie is "Have you heard from things about Guilford?". And none of us have. "Have you heard from things about Guilford?"

I'm going to hand this letter to Joe right away, so any delay will not be on my head.

Best regards to the Black and Gold.

DAVID JACKSON

Ah, Raleigh seems to be a spot favored by our class. My, I know this "ver-sperian" scrawl!

Raleigh, N. C., April 2, 1928.

DEAR EIGHTEEN-ERS:

Because the letter has stayed here awhile is no indication that we've forgotten our class. Judge Hinshaw of the district court, stopped over with us for dinner tonight, and the whole talk has been about our class and the college.

We never supposed we'd scatter like we have, did we? or we'd probably thought twice before we fussed so much that last spring. But I'm proud of the achievements of the 20 of "us." Why, we have lawyers, missionaries, judges, doctors, financiers, chemists, teachers, and married people! And you know what I wish? Well, this—That we'd have a remion back at Guilford. And, to impress the remnant of the faculty who knew us ten years ago, I'd have the missionaries dress in oriental brilliance, the judges wear their robes, the lawyers bring their books, the teachers their degrees, the doctors and chemists their "tools" and germs, and Benbow, our sole representative in the financial world, may bring a fragment of Wall Street!

Do you get my idea out of all that? Well, I'm going to stop writing. Please think about this. I know from what lots of the rest of you have said, you'd like to be back for a little while.

Best wishes for a reunion.

BERNICE

Oh—1 wonder!

P. S.—Dear Classmates:

loe politely gave me the first chance to write, since I'm his guest.

Joe pointerly dave much to say, except to boost the idea of a remion. We've been discussing it, and I think May 28th is the anspicious date. That will be the anniversary of our graduation, and if we talk it up enough, we can all be there. Who said once: "The Seniors can do anything they want to, provided they all agree on what they want to do and side to it?"

Well, let's everybody write to everybody, and not give up the scheme. This letter should reach the other members of the class before May 28. Some of you write me—at Randleman, please, and Mrs. Hinshaw will forward it. 1 don't always know where I'll be.

1ra

And Joe's a constitutional lawyer.

P. S. H. WELL, EVERYBODY:

The judge (ahem!) has left me only a small space, but I'll use it in talking about a reunion. That's a capital idea, and it ought to strike everybody right.

Now let's go down for commencement and the Alumin Banquet on the 28th of May, It will do us all good, and be no end of fun. We can see the King extension, the fountain and—oh, joy, a new gymnasium, to the building of which we all lent our prayers, exhortations and money. I'll wager "Bo" Jones will leave Wall Street long enough to inspect it, for I heard it said by one having authority, that he contributed towards it the goodly surplus between the H. C. of L. and his last year's salary. And we have heard Ellen's statement—she'll chaperone this last time!

Now everybody get the old class spirit—Back to G. C.! I guess that's about all the message from our house, and I'm sending this to Gertrude.

JOE

Pickering, Ontario, April 23, 1928.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

For once, I'm right with you! I'm coming back to Guilford this spring, and I'll certainly attend the reunion. I enjoyed the letters because I've traveled so much I had lost trace of almost all of you.

But I'll be seeing you. Lots of luck,

GERTRUDE

Oh, yes, she has explored Europe, and taken degrees from every college she passed by And she sent hers to "Mitch." Funny I didn't recognize the writing—it looks like him.

GULLFORD

Washington, D. C., May 7, 1928.

Dear Seniors:

I can talk so much better than I write that I'll only add to this that I shall either get a vacation in May or take one. My work (a government chemist, I believe), is pleasant, but I'm sorry it hasn't more "Math" in it. (Oh, horrors!). I'll tell you all you want to know about me at Guilford, and I bid to do most of the talking.

Until then, fare ye well.

P. S.-I'm sending this letter straight to China, and if it doesn't arrive in time for the reunion plan to take effect, I'll have done my best.

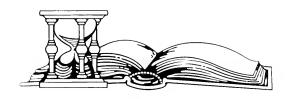

So that's the end—a reunion all worked up, and I missed it. May 28, 1928—May 28, 1918. "Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight." May 28. Why that's today—this very day! They're all there but me—even Ellen. Oh, I wish I didn't know about it. What a time they're having right now-And I always did-cry when I was homesick-(Rap-raprap—rap—rap) and that Chinaman never would let me cry in peace.
"Yes, thank you." With feverish haste I tore open the little yellow envelope and took in the details of the aerogram.

Greensboro, N. C., U. S. A., 9:30 a. m., May 28, '28.

"We are missing you on the 10th anniversary of our graduation. Nineteen of us here. Love from the Class of

I say it's nice of them! I'd give everything-except my work-to be there this min-But I'm going back next year-and I'll see them all and the folks at home, too. Oh, my heart-going home!

Senior Class Poem

Tis here that hearts are warm and true, And friendship given free Where joy and toil are blended too, Out here at old G. C. All loving still these quiet scenes. Who in the city throng And of them still, in every heart Will memories c'er be long.

The lovers of the black and gold,
Their task at G. C. done with courage go they bravely forth
To meet the larger one.
And the lessons learned in these dear halls
Have inspiration given
To climb the heights tho rough and steep,
Where others, too, have striven.

O. Alma Mater kind and great Thy praises will proclaim And may our spirit guide our way Through lowly paths of fame True sons of thine will ever be As champion of the right And ever may thy light of truth Lead us with luster bright.

Alma Mater

O, Gentle Mother, as now we must, loving thee, leave thee,

How strong and how close are we held in thy tender embrace!

Our hearts overflow when we think, when we know—that our journey,

Shall soon—in our turn—bear us far from thy beautiful face.

Thou hast watched o'er us in tender and loving compassion,

And many the faults by thy care hast thou charmed away.

In virtue and wisdom and honor hast labored to fashion,

And make us in deed and in word to be worthy of thee.

In years that shall come—that we've longed for—thy kind admonition.

Shall guide us, all truly, in peace through the world's fiercest storm,

One thought of thee and thy ways shall queuch strongest temptations,

And thy gentle might and great soul shall defy every harm.

Here would we offer to thee, Gentle Mother, our lives' true devotion.

Long in the hearts of our hearts let us hear thy sweet voice.

In mountain or valley, on plain or on hill-top, by river or ocean,

Wherever we dwell—may the ways thou hast taught be our choice.

Last Will and Testament

CLASS OF 1918

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
GULLFORD COUNTY

E, the Class of nineteen hundred and eighteen of Guilford College, being of sound mind, strong body and memory, realizing that we are soon to depart into realms unknown, do hereby make this our last will and testament:

First: To the Junior class, we give and bequeath the controlling voice in all organizations on the campus, said organizations to be in good condition without financial embarrassment.

Second: Whereas we have at last come into the possession of certain privileges, such as holding sway at our own table, chaperoning lower classmen, going to the store when we so desire, living a free unhampered life on the campus, having Junior picnics as well as Senior ones, we bequeath all these to the Junior class with the understanding that they make as good use of them as we did.

THIRD: We do give and bequeath all the lightless, heatless, waterless, meatless and wheatless days, which we have thoroughly enjoyed to "Whoo'ver they may concern.

FOURTH: Whereas two of our most scholarly mathematicians, Joe Reddeck and Warren Mitchell, have at last bid farewell to college algebra, we do hereby will the knowledge stored up by the two Seniors aforesaid to "Smiley" Towe and "Hal" Gilbreath.

FIFTH: We give and bequeath our Psychology and Logic books to the Junior class on condition that they master the subjects as well as their predecessors have.

SIXTH: Realizing that we must soon depart we bequeath the large number of Saturday nights spent in loneliness to our Faculty Social Committee, provided that such be used hereafter for the happiness of all.

Seventh: To Ruth Coltrane and Paul Fitzgerald of the Junior class we bequeath the vast knowledge of ancient Guilford which is vested chiefly in our day students.

Eighth: We give and bequeath a supply of apples, pears, etc., to Dewey Dorsett and Hobart Patterson like unto those Fort and Grissom borrowed from the College orchard in the fall of 1917.

NINTH: To Joe and John White of the Class of '19 we will the A's of the Seniors which were evenly distributed between Leah and Ruth Stanley.

TENTH: To Kate Smith and Vira Clodfelter we will and bequeath the "coffee pot" which has been a constant life saver for Deborah Brown and Bernice Pike.

ELEVENTH: Whereas two of our members, Miss Cronk and Mr. Hinshaw, bave been burdened with a super amount of dignity we now bestow this mantle on Gertrude Hobbs and Paul Fitzgerald.

TWELFTH: To the Junior class as a whole we give the privilege of being a shining example to other classes in such things as dignity on the campus and in the dormitories, and faultless behavior in chapel.

THIRTEENTH: The proficiency of Addie Morris of throwing basketball goals we proudly bequeath to Elma and Josephine McVey with the request that they continue to hold up the standard of a fast team set by Miss Roberts.

FOURTEENTH: To Georgianna Bird we bequeath the melodious voice and instrumental talent of Gertrude Cronk, provided the aforesaid G. Bird use her musical ability only on special occasions.

FIFTEENTH: To the Class of '21 we give and bequeath the privilege of removing the 18's which have adorned the water tank, cornerstones of the farm, and cattle barn since our Sophomore year. The aforesaid numerals are to be replaced by mid-term of next year representing some feat of the Class of '21.

SINTEENTH: Our valuable papers containing reminiscences of our midnight exploits to cherry trees, apple and pear orchards, strawberry patches; thrilling accounts of trips to Miss Worth's apple orchard for "bullets," and visits to the cattle barn for milk, we bequeath to the Sophomore class with the warning, "Watch the ground your feet tread upon."

SEVENTEENTH: We do give and bequeath all property which has served us well and of which we have no further use, such as "ponies," worn out cards, old furniture. Psychology exam, questions for eleven years, chafing dishes, note-books, exam, questions on all kinds of subjects, to our chief executor to be disposed of at public auction, provided Juniors may have the opportunity to buy privately. On our chief executor we bestow the power to collect from said sales a sufficient amount to pay our debts just or unjust, legal or illegal, including chemistry breakage fees tack hole fees, and unheard of biology extras. All over and above these debts shall be used to erect a memento to the Class of '18.

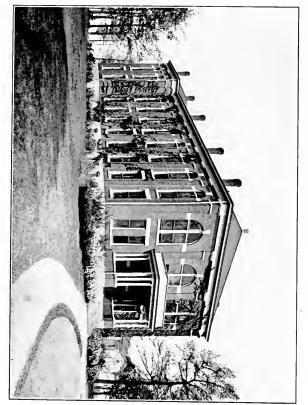

EIGHTEENTH: To those in authority we return a miscellaneous collection of cuts, faculties, and committee meetings with this admonition, "Use freely on hose who are in need of such."

NINETEENTH: We do hereby nominate and appoint Mr. "Boneparte" White as sole executor of all our interests and property to execute this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof this will has been drawn up without constraint of felrow classmates and in the presence of the following witnesses:

"Uncle Munn" Miller
"Uncle John" Pitts

PREPRATORY DEPARTMENT

College Song

In the North State, at its center, Stands a college old and fine; We all love it, 'tis our Guilford, 'Round it, ivy doth entwine.

CHORUS:

Dear old Guilford, dear old Guilford How we love thee more each year; When we're gone from thee forever, Still thy name we will revere.

At the first, poor timid Freshmen, How we longed at ease to be; How we trembled, how we toiled, O'er Physics and Geometry.

But we wiser grew as Soph'mores Said such digging did not pay; And the way we bluffed our teachers, No one ever knew but they.

Onward we advanced as Juniors, Cast aside our childish ways; Found that honest toil and pleasure Best could fill our college days.

Then, with Senior years advancing, Alma Mater ope's the door To larger tasks and broader visions; Which the future has in store.

Then let all who love our college, Love her, heart and soul and mind; Seniors, Juniors, Soph'mores, Freshmen, Sing with voices here combined. Societies

Athletics at Guilford

Despite the fact that Guilford's athletic resources are very limited due to the small number of students, it can be said that almost every person takes part in something. To prove this we have only to remember that right here is carried on practically all of the different athletic sports, and besides, these are carried on in such a way that it is a credit to our college.

Everyone here has something to do—both boys and girls. Football, baseball, basketball and tennis predominates among the boys, while the girls play basketball and tennis. No one should go without sufficient exercise, because we have the things to do and the places and material with which to do it. The strong and plucky can find a place on the gridiron, or in the gymnasium. Others can look to the tennis courts or track for exercise.

Because of the other forms of athletics track work has received very little attention in recent years and no team has been put out this year. Tennis is only a minor sport and the college was represented this year by Fitzgerald and Fox of the Junior and Sophomore classes, respectively.

While we have not had football at Guilford for many years, it has at last woke up from its unincessary sleep and secured a strong foothold in college athletics here. Last year it was slightly touched upon and a few college games were played. This year, however, it was enthusiastically aroused, when some of the strongest teams in North and South Carolina were played. State College, Wake Forest and Lenoir of North Carolina, and Wofford and Presbyterian College of South Carolina were on this year's schedule. We overwhelmingly defeated Lenoir, while the other games were lost by a close margin, no team scoring more than three touchdowns. We had two men on the team named as all state men. These were Zachary who played right guard and A. Newlin, our fullback. We mark this down as a successful season, for once again Guilford is recognized as being in the football sphere. Players winning letters this year were Jones, Zachary, Reddeck, A. Newlin, Fort, Stafford, Barnard, Babb, Walser, Bryant, Henley, and Hinshaw, manager.

We cannot claim to have done anything wonderful in basketball for the past four years, yet our team has been one of representative type. This year the team while playing good ball had luck against it and failed to win games from teams which we simply outplayed. Two of this year's team will be lost by graduation yet the material left is sufficient to make a strong team for next year. Basketball letters were awarded to Jones, Zachary and Grissom, manager.

The national sport, the greatest of all athletics at Guilford, has been on the boom for many years. Every spring a splendid baseball team is produced. Last year was a record-breaker for the Quakers. Not only did the fast aggregation win the State championship but it did not love a single college game during the season. Also on Easter Monday they walloped the Winston League Club by the score of 5 to 2. This year, while there are only two lettered men back, the team is going good. Already it has won four, lost one and played one tie, the latter being a sixteen inning contest at Raleigh with State College. The hitting of the team is not extremely high yet it is fair. The fielding can be said to be good. We are looking forward to an invincible machine and another State championship before the end of this season. Players winning letters in baseball this year will be: Zachary, Kendall, Ballinger, Reddeck, Hubbard, Marlette, A. Newlin, Johnson, Fitzgerald, Boren and Jones, manager.

The Young Women's Christian Association at Guilford College stands out preeminently above all other organizations on the campus and has the distinction of having every Guilford girl as a member. At the little weekly prayer meetings there is always something said to spur one on to higher and better things. Here girls come in close contact with each other in a way different from that in any other association in school. The real inward thoughts of the girls' lives speak to each other in a most joyful and comforting manner. Especially this year has the theme been honest steady work on the part of each. Although some things may seem trivial, it is the ability to stand and stand strong when the test comes, that is needed. Just now the morale of the country especially rests on the standard upheld by women and there is opportunity for such to be shown through the Y. W. C. A. Hence we feel that back of all should be the sincere love for service which has been set by the great Leader.

D. A. C. A.

The purpose of the Young Men's Christian Association of Guilford College is to unite all young men who desire to strengthen the spiritual life and influence of the College; to develop Christian character and promote fellowship; to carry on aggressive Christian work, especially by and for students; to train its members for Christian service and to devote their lives to Jesus Christ.

To bring this about the Young Men's Christian Association conducts prayer meetings on Thursday evening of each week during the school year. These meetings are in charge of a student or member of the faculty. The Bible study classes afford an excellent opportunity for solving problems of Christian life. When a new student arrives at Guilford, he is presented with a handbook containing information which will help him to become accustomed to life at the College, and for the first few weeks is under the special care of the Y. M. C. A. In conjunction with the Y. W. C. A. and social committee of the faculty, the Y. M. C. A. has charge of the social functions of the College.

The readiness with which the boys have responded to the many calls, the enthusiasm with which they have entered the Bible classes, in short the general interest manifested in Y. M. C. A. work during the past year, show the effectiveness of the organization.
